Four Plays: The Clouds, Birds, Lysistrata, Frogs

Aristophanes

The Clouds

The Clouds were performed in 423 BC at the City Dionysia in Athens. They were written by Aristophanes and are one of the earliest surviving plays. The plot centers around the god of thunder, Zeus, who is accused of rape by a group of women who claim to be his mistresses. The god of war, Ares, is also present in the play. The Clouds were the first of four plays that Aristophanes wrote during his career, and they are considered to be one of his most humorous and satirical works.

The Birds

The Birds is a comedy by the Ancient Greek playwright Aristophanes. It was performed in 414 BC at the City Dionysia in Athens where it won second place. It has been acclaimed by modern critics as a perfectly realized fantasy remarkable for its mimicry of birds and for the gaiety of its songs. Unlike the author's other early plays, it...

Julius Caesar

Julius Caesar was a political leader of ancient Rome, and is one of the most famous historical figures in Western culture. He was a key figure in the Roman Republic, and later became the leader of the Roman Empire. Caesar was assassinated in 44 BC, and his death marked the end of the Republic and the beginning of the Roman Empire.

Gothic Horror - TV Tropes

- Most birds, especially one of heavy flight like the heron, when roused by the falconer or his dog, would fly down, or with the wind in order to escape. When the wind is from the north, the heron flies towards the south, and the spectator may be dazzled by the sun, and be unable to distinguish the hawk from the heron.
